

The Department of Urban and Regional Planning and College of Design, Construction and Planning

Present

The Ernest R. Bartley Memorial Lecture Series

Featuring
Dr. Robert Knight

Founder and director of the Howard T. Odum Florida Springs Institute, a nonprofit program dedicated to supporting science and education necessary for restoration and wise management of Florida's artesian springs. An environmental scientist, he has more than 38 years of professional experience in Florida, including detailed ecological studies at more than 20 large springs.

Title: "A Natural Solution for Springs Protection"

Dr. Knight will provide a summary of the need for water sustainability in Florida with regards to restoring and protecting springs, and offer engineered constructed wetlands as an effective solution for water quality protection, aquifer recharge, and habitat creation.
